Spring has Sprung

Poem by Billy Harrison

Yet another season passes by,
Lambs' tails they swing so bold.
Snowdrops' heads begin to wilt,
And temperatures not so cold.

The golden sight of daffodils,
Standing tall and all at ease.
Gently swaying back and forth,
In rhythm to a gentle breeze.

Gardens life once more revived,
Nature begins to turn its head.
While we wait in anticipation,
When it emerges from its bed.

The seasons will always come and go,
For that we can be sure.
Nature brings us something special,
So refined and looking pure.

In our lives we've seen so many,
Of the seasons as we grow old.
No substitute for what we've seen,
And all the stories we have told.

Out of hibernation as nature stirs,
And as we near the end of spring.
Once again we wait in anticipation,
To see what the summer will bring.

Unknown to what may lie ahead,
We'll just have to wait and see.
The hope of sunny days to come,
That brings us Vitamin D.

The clocks will soon spring forward,
With it comes the longer days.
The feel good factor in us all,
As we feel better in many ways.

Chair's Chat

April already, and it feels as though the year is getting properly into its stride. Our monthly meetings continue to be well attended, groups are as busy as ever, and it's especially good to see new members settling in and getting involved so quickly. Thank you to everyone who helps make that happen, whether by running groups, welcoming newcomers in meetings and our coffee mornings, or simply taking part.

This month I wanted to highlight two very different events that are coming up. The first is a more serious one, and I know it won't be for everyone, but it is an important topic. The Dip in and Discover team have arranged a talk on 7 May, hosted by Age UK, called Understanding Dementia and How to Communicate with People with Dementia. Many of us will have experience of this, now or in the future, in our families or among friends, and the aim of the session is to give some practical understanding and confidence in how to respond. It is a challenging subject, but I hope it will be another opportunity to learn – which is at the heart of what u3a is all about.

On a lighter note, I'm very pleased to see that our u3a Festival is back again this year. Members of our Social Committee have been working with our North Notts Neighbourhood friends to organise the event on 17 June at the Visitor Centre in Sherwood Forest. There will be games, music and food, and it will be free to attend, so do put the date in your diary and bring friends or family along. You may also see the publicity video for the festival, created by our own u3a publicity team, which shows just how much effort is going into making this a really enjoyable day.

It's always good to have a mix of events like these; some that make us think, some that help us learn, and others that give us the chance to enjoy spending time together. That balance is part of what makes Mansfield u3a such a friendly and active organisation. Chris

Marilyn Dibble, Gardening Group Leader, has forwarded the following from Martin Fish.

Hello everyone and hope you are keeping well?

We're home now from Australia and all settled back into normal life, albeit much cooler! I must admit it did take a week or two to acclimatise back to cooler temperatures, which wasn't helped by the wet weather! Fortunately, the days are now lengthening and starting to warm up a little but for me spring doesn't start until the 21 March! In between my normal work, I'm trying to get on with work in the garden and have now cut back most of the perennials and herbaceous plants. My next priority is to lift turf to create a couple of new borders ready for spring planting. I'd made a start, but then the wet conditions called off play. I'm still confident (fingers crossed) everything will be ready for our NGS open day on 5 July. Talking of the NGS, I interviewed Dr Richard Claxton, the new chief executive recently for our Pots & Trowels podcast and had an interesting chat with him about the health benefits of gardening. Work at the flower shows starts in April with the Harrogate Flower Show and ends at the Malvern Autumn show in September. In total we're attending fourteen events of which details can be found for 2026 on our website <https://www.martinfish.com/events/> If you are planning to be at any of them, we love to see you.

Best wishes

Martin & Jill.

Jobs for March - April

Snowdrops have more or less finished now and it's a good time to lift crowded clumps and divide them into smaller clumps. This not only helps to spread them around the garden, it also invigorates tired clumps.

Roses can be given their spring prune. Some people suggest pruning in February but I prefer to wait until early to mid-March (Percy Throver always waited until late March!). Start by removing any dead, diseased or damaged stems and then cut back by one-third to half to an outward facing bud if possible.

Any very weak stems can be cut hard back. As a rule, the harder you prune, the more they will grow.

Cosmos and Amaranthus make a colourful show in pots or the border and can be started off now by sowing in small pots or plug trays.

In a propagator the seed will germinate in as little as 3-4 days with heat and develop into strong seeds for growing on. The colourful stems of dogwood can be cut down to almost ground level from mid-March onwards. It looks drastic, but it will encourage strong new growth over summer with bright stems for the winter. Once you've pruned in the borders, tickle over the soil with a fork and apply a mulch to improve the soil and moisture holding capacity in summer. Home-made compost, well-rotted manure or bagged mulch such as PlantGrow is ideal.

Lawns are now growing and can be given a gentle trim to tidy them up. It's also a good time to apply a moss killer if you want to try and reduce the amount of moss in your lawn. Ours are full of moss after the wet winter.

Shallots can be planted directly into the garden. Plant the small bulbs approximately 15cm (6in) apart with the tip of the bulb just above soil level.

Lettuce, salad leaves and spinach can be sown in trays or pots in a cold greenhouse to give you a supply of fresh leaves later in spring.

For a weekly gardening fix you can watch or listen to our "Pots & Trowels" gardening videos and podcasts by visiting www.potsandtrowels.com or on YouTube. Followers of Pots & Trowels can take advantage of the following discounts. Kings seeds offer 10% discount on seeds purchased from their web site www.kingsseeds.com by quoting the code PT2026. Plant Grow who make a range of organic mulches and compost offer 10% discount when ordering online www.plantgrow.co.uk or by calling 01953 525001 - just quote PT2026

Happy gardening, Martin Fish. www.martinfish.com

Sheila Pegg's Solo Dining Group

The Burnt Stump was the venue for our March evening meal where we enjoyed good food and good company with lots of conversation and laughter.

For our March Sunday lunch the Spring weather was kind to us as fifteen of us journeyed out to The Plough at Farnsfield where we were fed well with generous portions of Sunday Fayre.

This sounds interesting from Anne Ayres, secretary of the Notts & Derby Group of the Richard III Society who have just entered their 40th year.

To help celebrate this, they have a talk by Philippa Langley. Here is the link for the occasion: <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/the-princes-in-the-tower-the-new-evidence-philippa-langley-tickets-1981809378199>

Philippa Langley - The Missing Princes

Philippa Langley led the successful Looking for Richard Project in 2012, finding the remains of the lost king under a car park in Leicester. Her talk launches our 40th Anniversary Year, and covers the latest research on History's most famous Cold Case. that of the possible survival of Richard III's two nephews. She appeared with Rob Rinder in the award-winning 2023 Channel 4 documentary "The Princes in the Tower: The New Evidence", on the possibility, using European archival research, that the two boys were not murdered as history and tradition have supposed, but that they survived to adulthood with hidden identities,

An illustrated talk in the Main Hall at All Saints Centre, Common Rd Huthwaite, NG17 2JT.

"I Wandered Lonely As A Cloud"

The famous opening line to Wordsworth's famous poem was the subject of homework set for the Creative Writing Group by group leaders Hilary Miller and Susan Ford. The following two poems were written by two of our brilliant members.

A poem for John Kipling who died in his first engagement at the Battle of Loos in WW1. He was the son of Rudyard Kipling by Tracey Hatton.

Should there be a choice, I would not wander lonely as a cloud.
I would buy the smartest sports car my lieutenant's wage will permit and revving that engine loud and proud
I would squeeze every bit of life's enjoyment from it.

But my future will not be raced on lanes that wind around English hills.
My life is to be short, at 18 I'll be dead.
I will not rest amongst golden daffodils
My unmarked grave will be covered with poppies red.

Wordsworth felt so gay,
within the flowers' jocund company.
My companionship was found among those with whom I fought.
To save the England that I love from an aggressor's tyranny.

A thousand dancing flowers would have been a sight to enthrall.
Instead, I'm searching for landmarks towards the enemy's line
Staggering through blinding gas hanging in a pall, my short-sighted gaze cannot see Wordsworth's 'stars that shine'.

Or memories of those flowers that flashed on the poet's 'inward eye'.
Like him my thoughts turn inward, I long to be with family, in another place.

But I would not have them see the tears in my eyes.
Would they even recognise me as I clutch my shell shattered face?

Remembering my father's words, forcing my heart, nerve and head, to serve me long after they would have fled and gone.

Leaving only the will to be the son that he had bred and, maybe, earn those immortal words "and you'll be a man my son".

Until that will too expired and Death took me in his hand.
Now I lie sleeping under foreign sod,
while my father scours this war-torn land
Searching for his lost lad who's known only unto God.

Clouds by Jess Jones

Clouds are a phenomenon
Mainly caused by water vapour
Yet through the years they have inspired
Many to put pen to paper
From ancient Greeks to present day
They've held for us a fascination
Floating above us up on high
Stirring our imagination
We say that they have silver linings
To boost us up when things go wrong,
Then we talk of being on cloud nine
When something good happens along
Mick Jagger sang to get off his
Rosetti compared hers to sheep
While Shelleys "The Cloud" has many verses
Descriptive, long, with meaning deep.
And Joni Mitchell looked at them
From both sides now, you may recall
Until finally concluding that
She really didn't know them at all.
While Wordsworth wandered lonely as one,
That floats on high o'er vales and hills
And it's that first line we all remember,
Much more than the daffodils.
So as I upwards turn my gaze
To watch them float in endless sky,
I'll wonder at their mysteries
For there's more to them than meets the eye.

Needlework Group – Patricia Cleland

We had the first session of the Sewing group on Tuesday and it all went very well. Jennie worked with Nina as Jennie is quite an accomplished sewer already and she was helping Nina to make a table runner. I worked with Tracey who is making a bag.

It's quite a small group and that's because of limited space, but we all enjoyed it. We chatted about sewing in general and where to pick up supplies. Jennie told us about a fabric outlet in Warsop so we are planning a trip there in the future.

All very exciting!

The group is now full but I am taking names for a reserve list.

Bridge – Sheila Pegg

We had two enjoyable evenings of bridge in March. Bank Holidays are coming up in April and May so the next dates will be:

April 20, May 18

We hope you can join us for what promises to be an engaging and worthwhile session.

March's Speaker - Peter Slater

Our Speaker for March, Peter Slater, entertained us with his interesting tales relating to the personalities he has met and interviewed during his career. It was a really interesting and humorous talk with many insights into the sporting world. There doesn't seem to be many famous sportsmen and women that he hasn't interviewed over the years, from all the main sporting genres. Peter has kindly sent me the following information about himself:

"In July I'll have completed 50 years working as a sports reporter for various radio stations, including a 27-year stint for national BBC radio. My talk was based on my book "Don't You Know Who I Am?" and featured my meetings with many legendary sporting personalities. Of particular interest in Mansfield was my confrontation with Brian Clough, who called me a "Handsome Young Man."

Later that same day I was in Chesterfield to cover a League Two game against Oldham.

I'm still going strong and love talking about it, especially to u3a groups."

More to come next month.

Table Tennis & Curling: A Winning Combo – Linda Kennedy

As part of the Dip in and Discover programme, Jill and Christine recently organised a lively Table Tennis and Curling session at Oak Tree Leisure Centre—and what a success it was!

Thirteen members came along, bringing a mix of abilities but plenty of enthusiasm. Everyone joined in, gave it a go, and there was lots of laughter along the way. The session finished on a sociable note too, with some heading off for a well-earned coffee afterwards.

The positive feedback was clear—everyone was keen to see more sessions like this. We're delighted that Linda Priest has kindly volunteered to take on the role of Group Leader (a huge thank you to her!).

The next session is already booked for Monday 27th April, 11.00am–12 noon, so do come along and join the fun!

Card Crafting – Jill West

The card class worked well to produce some super cards. Everyone had fun and tea, coffee and biscuits. Well done.

The Sheriff of Nottingham FB page has kindly given me permission to print the following piece of local history which I thought you might find as interesting as I did, although I am sure many of you will already have known all about it.

"The Siege of Nottingham started 832 years ago on 25th March 1194, King Richard I, the Lionheart, laid siege to Nottingham Castle. Following his long absence on crusade and then his capture and ransom the king was intent on restoring his authority over England. He directed the full force of his military resources against Nottingham Castle a formidable stronghold held in the name of his rebel brother Prince John.

Richard I had been crowned King of England at Westminster on 3rd September 1189 five years previously. Richard's dominating passion was to embark on crusade. To do that he needed three things.

1. money lots of it and Richards tax collectors are already hard at work squeezing every penny they could from the people of England. The king is supposed to have said at the time he would sell London if he could find a buyer.
2. He needed peace with the French king, Richard had secured that even before his coronation when he met King Philip at Gisors.
3. Finally he needed security at home. To get that he needed to deal with his 22 year old brother, John. In an attempt to buy the loyalty of John this troublesome brother was given six entire counties including Nottinghamshire. Thereafter until 1194 and the Kings return these counties made no returns of revenue to the crown but only to John. Territorially John was in a position of enormous power. The attempt to buy off John failed!

John had seized Nottingham Castle after his brother departed on crusade. By 1192 John was in open rebellion when news came that the returning King had fallen into the hands of his enemy the Duke of Austria.

He was only released after the payment of a vast ransom and concessions of land in Normandy to King Philip.

By the time Richard reached England on 13th March 1194 much of the rebellion raised by his brother John had been suppressed but the royal castle at Nottingham remained in rebel hands. Richard was determined to reduce it to his obedience as soon as possible when he arrived in Nottingham on the 25th March 1194."

Festival in the Park

Once again the Festival in the Park has been organised by Leslye Henstock, on behalf of the North Notts Neighbourhood Group, who have put a tremendous amount of work putting this event together.

We hope you will come and support us. There will be music, games, laughter and fun. Refreshments available on site or please bring your own picnic.
